Gez Whiz, A Qwhiz.
Toronto, Ont., March 6.—(C.U.P.)—For the first time since its inauguration, this column pauses for a story from Montreal's Sir George Williams College. It seems that a "Qwhiz" was conducted down Drummond St. way a while ago with an eye to finding out what students think. . . . (If) . . . Hitler won hands down as "Public Nuisance No. 1," but, and this is quite interesting, a strong showing was made by quizes. This probably accounts for the fact that the young Georgians conducted not a quiz but a qwhiz. The pollers also tried to find out the names of the most popular of the men and women students. But the results were too varied, and with a faint de gustibus Qwhiz, Inc., went back to its most popular co-ed.

Oh, Babies!

Manitoba's Mock Parliament is mopping its collective brow after deciding definitely that the state should not endorse birth control. The only time mock parliaments ever get anywhere is when they decide that the state shouldn't do things it isn't going to do anyway. Refuting the argument that birth control would clear slums, one debater said, "Birth control would remove the only beautiful thing in the slums—the children." This column takes no sides in public, but there is an obvious fallacy somewhere in that statement. Since most universities are old buildings in old sections of the city, they are usually situated quite near the slum districts. Any one of you can go out today and see how beautiful are the children in the slums, and if you think they are (which I don't—see Steinbeck), ponder on the inherent wrong of taking them out of the slums. You would think the kids were trees or something.

Bronze Baby

In the printing office of The Varsity, the University of Toronto newspaper, is a cut (a lead casting of a picture used to reproduce the picture in print) taken from an advertisement for lingerie which once appeared in that newspaper. As lingerie ads usually do, it portrayed a beautiful young lady clad in the advertiser's product. There is a sheet of paper pasted on the back of this cut, and on it is written, so that all may see, "THIS IS NOT THE BRONZE BABY." So the freshman reporter first comes into contact with the most coveted trophy in Canadian intercollegiate sports—simply because it is coveted by the ladies.

For you who are still ignorant, the Baby is emblematic of senior women's basketball championship of the Ontario and Quebec universities. As this is being written, the jarringly ladies from Varsity, Western, McGill and Queen's will soon be bashing each other around just for the Bronze Baby. As you read, it will be all over and once again the Bronze Baby will be something that isn't a lady in lingerie who lives in the cut-box of The Varsity.

Chorus and Principals Set to Give Gala Performance

By E. H.

Submitting itself to the acid test of audience reaction, the Red and White Revue of 1940, which opens tomorrow night at 8:30 in Moyses Hall, will give a special preview performance for the men of the Air Force and the Toronto Scottish Regiment tonight.

Much in evidence at last night's dress rehearsal were: Barbara Whitely, doing her monologue about a matron's war effort; Jack Waud, who plays the comic lead in his latest operetta; Doris Alcock, singing and dancing; while John Kettles plays his new humorous song "Where Do We Go From Here?" The dancing chorus went through six modern routines, perhaps the most notable of which was the jitterbug number which includes a specialty by Harry Jay, Betty Grimley and Jane Spearman.

Harmonizing with well-trained voices, a quartette composed of Elaine Painter (who did her own orchestration), Betty Hagmeier, Dorothy Kimball and Audrey Goodwyn took the spotlight twice. They sang two romantic ballads, "No Letter" by Harold Robinson, and "Something Happened" by Gerald Wishart.

DANCE TO BADGER AT MED BALL ON FRIDAY

By E. V. S.

Final arrangements have been completed to make this year's Med. Ball, this Friday, the gayest in history. Rolfe Badger's Band, in addition to supplying music for the medicos' dance teams, is also importing a bag of tricks. Rabbits will not be pulled out of silk hats, nor will a beautiful blonde be saved in two, but Badger's stunts will include many amusing bits of fun and frolic.

The music will begin at 10 p.m. in the Main Ball Room, and will continue until 3 a.m., with a supper interlude in the adjoining Normandie Roof at 12:30 a.m. Tables on the Roof will all be reserved, so that those going in groups may be seated to suit their own whims. Reservations for tables should be made today, or as early as possible. A phone call to the Head Waiter at the Mount Royal will do the trick.

The Faculty, pre-clinical and clinical, from the staffs of the hospitals will be well represented. The Patronesses will include Mrs. F. Cyril James, Mrs. A. Grant Fleming, Mrs. J. C. Simpson, Mrs. D. Scialer Lewis, Mrs. G. Lyman Duff, Mrs. R. R. Struthers and Mrs. D. L. Thompson.

DAILY BANQUET SET FOR 14TH

Annual Event Marks End of Publication

Reporters, Editors, Guests and Graduates Will Be Present

Reporters, editors, guests and graduates from the ranks of the Daily will meet on Thursday, March 14, at the annual Daily Banquet which is being held at 6:30 in the Union Grill Room. In all 150 people will attend.

Among the special guests invited will be representatives from the Star and the Gazette and Daily old boys who have made their mark in journalism and other fields since graduating from McGill. The last and most important gathering at which the whole Daily staff meets, the banquet is an annual event given by the Managing Board for the reporters who have regularly helped put out the paper throughout the year and marks the end of publication of the Daily.

On this occasion all new appointments to the masthead are announced and awards are made. In the past gold rings, and gold, silver and bronze pins have been awarded. Lowest on the scale of awards is honourable mention.

A list will be published shortly in the Daily giving the names of those who are eligible to attend the banquet.

CANDIDATES CONTEST UNION PRESIDENCY

GLENN KEITH COWAN

SCIENCE 2.

I have no intention of making a list of vain promises in this platform. Wooden planks are best left in the lumber yards unless they are to be used constructively. I intend rather to aim at a few things which are possible of achievement and to carry them out, if elected, to the best of my ability.

The president's most important role is that of integrating the interests of the Union with the other university activities through his seat on the Students' Executive Council and his contact with the student body itself. My work on the Council and in general student affairs has convinced me that one of the absolutely necessary things in student government is a sporting attitude, an attitude of fair play in all decisions made. The Union could lead the way in this respect, and, if elected, I promise to see that the facilities of the Union are made available to the students without prejudice or favour and at all times to keep in mind the best interests of the University.

I feel that the Union should become more and more the headquarters of the student body and its organizations. I shall co-operate with those organizations in need of some permanent office space, such as the expanding Outing Club in endeavouring to provide space and facilities in the Union.

In this connection, I feel that the Athletic office, soon to be vacated, could be made into an adequate space there now should be enlarged. (Continued on Page Four)

G. C. McDONALD

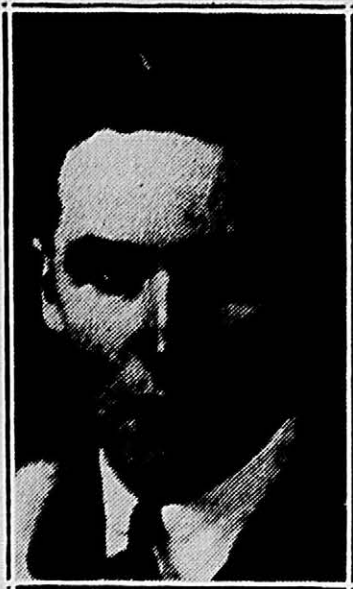

ARTS 3

If returned as President of the Union, I will use the experience I gained while living in the building this year as Secretary to put into effect a definite programme. Realizing that the Union is due for a renovation both in the physical aspect and in the matter of programme, I would advocate certain definite improvements to the plant and to its administration. The following would render the Union more useful to the student body as a whole:—

1. Complete reorganization of the basement.
2. Larger Cafeteria accommodation.
3. More space for club meetings.
4. Billiard, ping pong, entertainment improvements.
5. The Union and the War.

The President of the Union obtains a seat on the Students' Executive Council. This, I feel, is an extremely important aspect of the position. It entails a responsibility which I would do my utmost to discharge in the light of my past executive experience at McGill.

The basement of the Union is at present in a dilapidated condition and is in dire need of renovation. The time is now ripe, both financially and materially, for a complete reorganization and reconditioning of the floor space found in the basement. What is more, the offices of the Band are to be moved to the Gymnasium, leaving a vacancy. The offices of the clubs using space there now should be enlarged. (Continued on Page Four)

MED. 2.

In presenting a platform, I would like to say that the following statements are not promises to be kept or broken, but are a few ideas which I think can, and ought to be put into effect, in the management of the McGill Union.

The membership of the McGill Union is made up of the whole male student body of this University. Whether you know it or not, each one of you pay $3.50 a year to the upkeep of it. Hence the Union is primarily the students' club. It should be the centre of all the activities of the Campus, and should be run with this aim in view. Clubs and societies should have ready access to its facilities.

One of the great needs of the Union in this respect, is the lack of meeting and conference rooms. At present, only the Music Room is available. As the Athletic Office will move into the new Gym this spring, there will be additional space on the second floor for such rooms. These would be appropriately furnished and add greatly to the usefulness of the "Club."

The Union has a very fine reading room with a large assortment of magazines and newspapers, both local and out of town, which are not used as much as they should be. There are also four pianos in the building. Fellows who would like to keep up their music, but can't, for lack of facilities, should be encouraged to use them.

During the last few years there has been a falling off in the use. (Continued on Page Four)

Realizing the relative unimportance of the position for which I have been nominated, I shall not make any wordy campaign promises which I shall not be able to keep.

The Union which all male students support as part of their universal fees is and should be available to all clubs and societies desiring to use it. Unfortunately in the past because of a lack of space many clubs have not been able to hold their meetings when desired. Next year with the removal of the (Continued on Page Four)

FRED MOORE

May I first thank those who have nominated me for the position of the Vice-President of the Union. A platform such as this is best if brief and to the point, so without further ado, here it is.

To me the problem is one of attracting more students to its use and thus foster that college spirit which to some extent has been lacking of late on our campus.

I do not intend to promise that certain changes will or will not be made. That is stupid. What I promise is to investigate whether it is possible to bring about certain changes for the welfare of all the students. Outlined below are a few points in which the Union may be improved.

The meals as served by the Cafeteria are good and are at popular prices. I should commend that this policy be continued, and an attempt made to find out if even better and cheaper meals could be obtained.

If the number of students using the ping-pong and billiard tables was increased, the cost of these may be reduced. If so, it should be investigated. To stimulate more interest, more extensive tournaments could be arranged, which would tend to attract more students to the facilities of the Union.

Clubs and Societies on the campus should be encouraged to use the facilities of the Union as much as possible. This would tend to introduce the Union to more students than heretofore. A gift of Sir William Macdonald, it is intended to be the centre of student recreational activity.

In order that the facilities of the Union be utilized to a greater extent, I should commend a definite advertising campaign in the Daily during the term, in which the advantages of the Union could be (Continued on Page Four)

Since the Vice-President of the Union does not hold a position of great authority, it would be both misleading and a waste of time for me to advance a long list of ambitious campaign promises, which would supposedly be fulfilled if I am elected to this office.

In so far as the office allows I would like to see every student getting as much as possible out of the Union for the money he puts into it. The Billiards Room, Ping-Pong Room, Cafeteria, and Reading Room should be made as attractive as possible. As so many student activities are concentrated in the Union some supervision is necessary in order that conflict may be avoided, and that all may be served well.

As the war continues it is possible that the amount of money available for the running of the Union will decrease, and I think that next year's executive should take this into account when making their (Continued on Page Four)

COUNCIL FINDS NEW CSA NAMES NOT DESIRABLE

Action Follows Resolution of Students' Society

COUNCIL TO REPLY

To Suggest 'Student Interest Club' as New Designation

Although the Canadian Student Assembly submitted four names to the Students' Executive Council for its ratification (in accordance with a motion passed at the recent Students' Society meeting), none was accepted at a Council meeting held last night. The Council contended that the proposed names did not meet the requirements of the Society's motion.

Following are the names suggested by the local C.S.A.

McGill Chapter of the Canadian Student Assembly.

McGill Committee of the Canadian Student Assembly.

McGill Section of the Canadian Student Assembly.

Canadian Student Assembly at McGill.

Council Name.

In reply the Council will suggest that some such name as "Student Interest Club" affiliated to the Canadian Student Assembly.

(A motion carried at a meeting of the Students' Society held on February 20 reads: "Wherefore, The Canadian Student Assembly be requested to change its name to one which in the opinion of the Students' Executive Council of McGill University correctly represents that it is a club and not speaking for McGill students as a whole.")

BIOLOGICAL SOCIETY TO HEAR MACLENNAN

Professor Macleennan, of the Department of Philosophy, will discuss "Science and Ethics" tomorrow night at 8:15 in the R.V.C. Common Room. The meeting is under the auspices of the Biological Society, and all interested are invited to attend. The speaker, a graduate of Edinburgh University, will be introduced by Helen Winter, the secretary-treasurer of the Society.

In the opinion of Professor Macleennan, Ethics is one of the most important of the Philosophical Sciences. It has played a great part in improving social conditions, he stated.

Recent papers by scientists who have debated the possibilities of establishing a science of ethics, will be discussed. Later the meeting will be thrown open to questions from the floor.

PLATFORMS

All platforms and photographs for nominees in the forthcoming elections have not yet been handed in. It is essential that these be turned in TODAY. Otherwise it may be necessary to omit some of the platforms. They should be left in a sealed envelope addressed to the "Elections Editor," McGill Daily, in the Tuck Shop of the McGill Union.

An Aid to Voters

McGill students go to the polls next week to elect representatives to major campus positions which have yet to be filled. Twenty candidates have been nominated for the contested posts, seven are to be elected. The men and women who are elected will be entrusted with the administration of many student activities during the coming year. They will also represent McGill on various occasions. It is important that the most worthy of the candidates be selected.

As announced last week, the Daily will publish the platforms and biographies of all candidates, and for the more important offices, their photographs. In addition, a series of editorials will be published, written by previous office-holders, outlining the duties and responsibilities which each post entails.

Today we publish editorials describing the positions of President and Vice-President of the Union. The platforms and biographies of the candidates appear on page one. Read both editorials and biographies carefully, consider the platforms, and next Wednesday mark your ballot for the men whom you sincerely feel are best suited to occupy these positions.

The President of the McGill Union

Among the positions which will soon be contested on the campus is that of President of the Union. It carries with it a greater degree of immediate responsibility than do most of the other posts for which elections are being held. It is the duty of the Union President, in collaboration with the Vice-President and the Secretary, who form the Union House Committee, to see to it that the facilities of the building are kept available to the students. To do this it is first of all necessary for him to insure that the physical equipment of the Union is properly looked after and that whatever adjustments are needed from time to time be made. It thereby falls to him to allot to the employees whatever work has to be done. He has, in short, to see to it that the Union is maintained as a place which the male students can use as their club and maintain it in such a way that its use will be, on the whole, satisfactory to them.

Apart from these responsibilities to the students he has, at times, to use his judgment in doing what he considers to be in the best interest of the University. Each year there arise certain situations, the outcome of which will reflect to the University's credit or disadvantage. How he handles these situations will in the last analysis depend on how he thinks along the lines in question.

In casting their votes, therefore, the students will do well to consider whether they are entrusting their interests to a man who has the practical abilities to perform wisely the routine duties and to act in a way on more difficult decisions in which they themselves would act were they in his position.

"A prof. who comes to class five minutes late is very rare," says The Fordham Ram. "In fact, he is in a class by himself."

The Vice-President of the Union

The Vice-President of the Union is a member of the three-man committee which controls the McGill Union. His duties, as laid down by the Constitution of the Union, are to take the place of the President when necessary. While this is the only duty assigned by the Constitution, the Vice-President is expected to share equally, with his two confederates, the complete responsibility of the administration of the largest single undergraduate organization on the Campus.

At one time the Union was managed by a committee of men representing the various faculties, clubs and societies on the Campus. At that time the duties were divided among the various men—each being responsible for a distinct department. It was felt a few years ago that this system was unsatisfactory and the Constitution was amended. The building is now managed by a three-man committee.

Naturally with such a small number of men on the Committee the work has become more centralized and greater efficiency is obtained. But this end may be obtained only if the three members are willing to share the responsibility and work together. Daily there are matters arising which call for the consideration of the President, naturally he cannot attend to all these things himself and a large amount of work falls on the shoulders of the Vice-President. The Vice-President must above all things be a man with enough spare time to devote to the work.

The position of Vice-President should be filled by a man willing to devote considerable time and energy to the work. It should be filled by a man who has had previous experience in undergraduate executive work and a man who mixes well with his fellow students. Such a position calls for a great deal of personal contact. The Union House Committee should not be, in our opinion, the training ground where the college man receives his first administrative experience; rather should he have received an introduction to this training in various college clubs, classes and undergraduate societies, and then, when he has had some experience let him handle this more important work.

THE R.V.C. ANGLE

By K. A.

The English language is often open to gross misinterpretation, and the following story is a case in point. Last Saturday or maybe it was the Saturday before last, one of the girls decided that she would go up North. Somebody remarked that they didn't think the skiing would be much good that day.

"Oh that's all right," she replied lightly. "I'm just going up to get a little sun and air."

As we said the English language is often open to misinterpretation.

To say that R.V.C. was quiet over the long weekend would be a vast piece of understatement. It was like a house of death, with those few people who had remained home to study, moving through it like spectres. On Sunday evening one of the girls reached the breaking point and decided to phone her aunt so that she would ask her over to dinner. She called the number and asked for Mrs. Smith. A woman's voice at the other end informed her that she had the wrong number. With some people that would have been that, but this girl has a perfect horror of phones, and this contemptuous shook her nerve rather badly. However she took a deep breath and tried again. The same voice answered, and this time with not unnatural impatience, said slowly and emphatically that Mrs. Smith did not live there. By this time the girl was sweating pretty heavily, but with strange stubbornness she decided to try again. Before phoning she had it all planned in her mind that if the same woman answered she would disguise her voice and ask for Mrs. Robinson. Her motives for doing this were a little garbled, but anyone who dislikes telephones will probably understand them. Still thinking of this she phoned a third time, and this time her aunt answered the phone. The girl recognized her voice immediately, but for some unaccountable reason she found herself asking in a shrill unnatural sort of voice for Mrs. Robinson. Her aunt replied courteously that she had the wrong number and hung up, leaving the unfortunate girl shattered in mind and body. Needless to say she did not go out to dinner that night.

We heard a pretty good story the other day concerning a trapper. It seems that this trapper was working some territory up in the lonely back-woods, and returning home one day to his cabin he was suddenly attacked by a couple of hungry timber wolves. Not having a gun he was forced to climb a tree, although he was only a hundred feet or so away from his cabin where there was a rifle leaning against the side of the house. Anyway he climbed the tree, and the wolves settled themselves comfortably at the bottom, waiting for him to descend. This deadlock continued for about four hours, and the trapper, seeing that there was no possible way of getting his gun, prepared to spend the night as comfortably as possible in the tree. Suddenly one of the wolves got up, and padded away softly into the forest, leaving the other one on guard. He returned in about half an hour with a beaver who immediately set to work on the tree in which the trapper was perched. The tree fell finally with a great rending crash and landed the trapper practically on his door step. He immediately grabbed his rifle, and shot the two wolves.

"Then," he concluded with a gleam in his eye, "I kicked the hell out of that beaver."

The other day a very pretty tale of woe came to our ears. It was the end of the month, and one of the girls was submerged in debt. She had reached that back-to-the-wall stage where she was keeping off her creditors by telling them she was expecting her allowance any day, but her allowance failed to show up. Accordingly, harassed on all sides, she wrote a frantic letter home asking them to send money immediately. The afternoon after she had mailed the letter her long expected cheque arrived. That made everything just dandy, and she thought all her troubles were over. But no—the next morning she got another letter from her family with a second cheque enclosed. Before reading the letter she tore this cheque into small pieces and then found to her horror that her father had cancelled the first cheque, thinking it was lost, and the second one that she had just tossed lightly into the waste paper basket was good. She then tore up the first cheque in a fit of pique, and sat down to write an apologetic and complicated letter home. A couple of days later she got a telegram from her father, the contents of which were simple and shattering. All it said was "First cheque now good."

Too bad there isn't a good course in forestry at McGill.

ART

CONTEMPORARY AMERICAN PAINTINGS.

On the heels of the Contemporary British Art Exhibition comes the Contemporary American. This selection which is touring Canada is much smaller than the original collection at the Golden Gate Fair. That it is representative of the best in American Art today must be taken on authority.

It is a pretty grim picture on the whole, not unlike the reality it depicts, full of resoluteness and virility. The "American scene" made its appearance about ten years ago, and although in itself it is a wrong emphasis as the spirit of painting does not come from the subject matter, it did succeed in freeing the artists from the restraints of studio stills and prescribed attitudes, and it stimulated imagination. This last is of prime importance.

Benton of Missouri, Wood of Iowa, and Curry of Kansas, are the famous trio who created from their regional painting three arts of personality. We miss Grant Wood in this show but Thomas Benton is there, verging on caricature, with his negro lyric "Romance", and James Steuart Curry has a strange arrangement entitled "Swine killing a Rattlesnake", which is reminiscent of an 18th century French classic pastoral.

We are reminded of Delacroix and even of Rubens in Jon Corbino's "Flood Refugees" which is one of the masterpieces of the show. Firm forms of horses and humans in a setting of movement and colour are rendered with energy and passion. It is not a painting of actuality but an imaginative conception of a state of mind.

Many of the themes are of social import, such as Jacob Smith's "The Messianic Age", Sam Rosenberg's "Man-Made Desert", and Isaac Soyfer's picture of desolation entitled "What Next?" A scene from the Grapes of Wrath would not be out of place in these surroundings.

Constantine Poulail's portrait called "the Red Tam" is a restful variation, as is Waldo Pierce's "Jane". Kostellow's figure arrangement might be an attempt to regain the simplicity of primitive madonnas. One of the most appealing pictures is Myer Abel's "Children" their wide-eyed, peaked faces topped by strands of wet black hair. James Chapin's boy practising with a sax is a much-needed comic element.

The United States has gradually been growing conscious of art as a living expression and of artists as men with economic needs like other men. As a result we find the recent Section of Fine Arts a permanent branch of the U.S. Treasury. Among other things its purpose is to procure for the decoration of Federal buildings the services of the nation's best mural painters and sculptors, and the success of this venture deserves international investigation.

The examples of American painting in the art gallery are by no means extreme. They are not even very far advanced by European standards, but to use a horrible expression—there's some good "wholesome" work. It's a thought-provoking exhibition, and some of the thoughts are spicy.

Frank Hutchinson's oils are also on view in the gallery. —K. G.

ODE TO OXYDOL...

Soft breezes blow the hanging shirt;
Display the grace, without the face
Of man divested.

May's zephyrs raise the fleecy cloud
Of undies, like a floating shroud
In ghostly dance, and draw a glance
Uninterested.

A chorus dancing upside down
Disputes the humor of the clown
In ballet mode.—Valkuries rode
By uncontested.

Enchanted by the airy ease
Of diapers dangling in the breeze.
The nightshirts sway; and hankies stay
Till they are rested.

Twilight fills the evening sky
And wearied garments stagger by
In frenzied leaps, to land in heaps.
Their talents tested.

Reply to Critics.

To the Editor of the McGill Daily.

Sir:—Last Friday there appeared in the columns of your paper a letter by two worthy members of the Faculty of Engineering, Messrs. Slobbo and Crerar. These two gentlemen attempted by means fair or foul to berate an article which I had written.

Messrs. Slobbo and Crerar, you vaguely accused me of not writing true facts and presenting no valid arguments. But in your whole letter I can find only one fault which you point out, that being confusing "pop" music with swing. I am very sorry if I had hurt your feelings when I committed such a terrible crime. You can attribute this to my ignorance of the field of jazz.

In view of my desire to learn about swing, I graciously accept your invitation to come to Douglas Hall at my earliest convenience for a lecture on swing and to listen to some of your records.

One thing more, you mentioned the misspelling of "Sizell." I am sure that this was a typographical error, of the same calibre as your misspelling of "Teagarden."

For the time being I shall continue to wear my hair long; perhaps when we meet you gentlemen will shorten it.

Yours musically,

New Gym Scene of 28-23 Win Over Queen's Quintet

Kingston, Sandberg Star for McGill in Fast Game

Last night saw the Senior Basketball Squad down the Kingston cagers by the very convincing score of 28-23. The game featured very strong defensive tactics on the part of McGill which prevented the Gaels from getting anywhere near the Red basket.

Sandberg netted the first tally for the home team after a couple of minutes of play and chalked up six more points before the end of the game. Queens featured a high powered passing offensive centred about Davis but McGill's counter-attacks kept them down near their own basket. Giannasio showed very good form as the spearhead of the Red attack, but Kingston netted the most points for the first half. The lead was shuffled between both teams during the latter half of the stanza which closed with Coach Van Wagner's quintet ahead 15-13.

Reds Creep Ahead. Davis started the second half by tying the score and a little later an amusing incident occurred when Purdie shot at his own basket and luckily for the McGillians it was a miss. The Reds gradually crept ahead slowly but surely at the rate (Continued on Page Four)

Of all these failures, the basketball team was the biggest personally. We firmly believed they had the makings of the best team in the league, and so they did, but they were sadly lacking in temperament. At times they would play basketball that was on a par with any team in the country, but they were anything but consistent. However, to give them their just dues, they were handicapped by injuries, but we still think they were the best team in the league if they felt like playing ball. Also, we were sorry to see them lose the title as it meant the end of Mr. Van Wagner's hopes to win championships in the three sports he coaches, track, harrier and basketball.

Another thing that entirely fails to register with us is the way various people around college are paning the hockey team for their lackadaisical and uninspired play against Varsity. Unfortunately, we were unable to attend that game, so what we know is based on hearsay. Perhaps they were out of condition and had little fight, but we hardly think it is fair to condemn the team for circumstances beyond their control. During the whole season the team played only eleven games, while Toronto played at least twice that number. And people wonder why they were in better condition than McGill.

However, without taking anything from Toronto, who evidently deserved to win, we think that if the McGill team had had a day's rest between the Queens and Varsity games on the road, they would have beaten Toronto in the Queen city. But this is only what might have been, and is also probably sour grapes on our part, but we still believe that to be true. And just to repeat it once again, it was the fact that McGill withdrew from the Senior Group that really caused their downfall.

Not that this is any news, but it (Continued on Page Four)

Frosh Drop Game to Southwestern Y

INTERS WIN 30 TO 20

Asch and Chown Are Stars on Both Fives

The Inters trimmed the Aggies last night to the tune of 30-20, while the Frosh were topped by Southwestern Y by the score of 40-30. These games took place simultaneously in the new gym, immediately before the Senior tilt. The Junior contest was the last of the league schedule.

The Inters took and held the lead and though Aggies bagged the first basket they were ahead for a few moments only. The inferior MacDonald shooting prevented a catch-up; and Asch, Reilly, and Leonard kept the ball in the Green and Yellow basket. The stanza ended with the Reds ahead 14-7.

Asch Tops. In the second half, the Aggies knocked up a quick six points, which put them on the McGill doorstep. The home team then went to town and made ten points. The game ended 30-20 for the Redmen. Asch was top scorer, netting ten points, while Villanova and Williams of the visitors made six points each.

'Y' Team Downed by One Point—Betty Telford Stars

Playing their return game with the Southwestern Y in Verdun on Monday night the R.V.C. "Cagers" eked out a win of 14-13. This coed squad has been formed from the members of a physical education class, and most of the girls are beginners. They have already played their home and home games with the Y but they are very enthusiastic and wish to continue playing.

The Y led for the first quarter playing an excellent game but at the end of the half the two squads were tied. During the second frame both defences tightened up and the play was fast and colourful as the onlookers were breathless with excitement in the closing minutes of the tilt.

Betty Telford took highest scoring honours while Kalliope Anastas the captain was excellent on the defence, the other members of the squad were Natalie Joseph, Dorothy Koch, Norma Vickers and Grace Wikendon.

When the game was over the girls were entertained by swimming in the new Y pool with its sound proof ceiling, and later on partook of delicious refreshments.

CLASS OF '40

HOWIE WALKER

This exceptional athlete who has proven his worth as one of McGill's finest contributions to the hockey ranks was born in Montreal in 1917, and has just concluded his final year on the Red roster.

Previous to his entrance to McGill, Howie attended Strathcona Academy and while there, he showed the promise which has featured his stay at McGill. Upon entering this university, he chose engineering as his course and consequently will receive his degree in that faculty in the spring. Although coming to McGill in 1935, Howie would have graduated last year, but due to circumstances he stayed out a year, and during that time he played his hockey for Royal Juniors.

Besides being an outstanding puck chaser, Howie is quite a baseball enthusiast, and during his period at Strathcona he also tried his hand at football. More than likely, Howie shall find time to turn out with one of Montreal's senior hockey teams in the future, where he would be eagerly sought and welcomed with opened arms.

And so we close this brief account of a fine player. Howie has always given his best for dear old McGill, and the latter will miss him immeasurably. Only last week he showed his fighting qualities as well as his remarkable ability on the ice against the University of Toronto squad, only to see his team succumb to the spirited Varsity sextet. We wish him all kinds of success in his new undertaking upon graduation, and we hope to hear from him in the sport world for a few more years at least. Bon Voyage, Howie.

ST. ADELE SCENE FOR RED SKI MEET

Six Colleges Represented in Coed Annual Engagement

With five colleges invited to participate, The McGill Women students will play host this Sunday in their second annual Ski Meet at Ste. Adele. Included in the invitations which went to four American colleges was one to Toronto Varsity who captured the Meet last year.

Four representatives will come from each University, and from the following will depend the hopes of McGill: Dorothy Bott, Jean Scrimger, Sylvia Grove, Betty Smith, and Frances McLeod. The four U.S. colleges taking part are, St. Lawrence from Canton, N.Y., Vassar from Poughkeepsie, Middlebury, Vermont; and Skidmore, Saratoga, N.Y.

The Slalom will be run off in the morning at 11 a.m. on Hill 80, and the Downhill will be run off after lunch on one of the trails leading from the Chantecleer. After the event tea will be served to the poor dears at the Chantecleer.

R.V.C. BASKETBALL

The Intercollegiate team with Patsy Power, Nancy Drury and Norma Robinson are invited to come for a final get together at Mrs. Tyrrell's apartment No. 20, 3436, Shuter street, on Wednesday at 5 p.m.

KEN BRAND

Ken was a member of this year's Senior hockey team and did yeoman service as a defenceman. He entered into the world in 1915 at Kenogami, Quebec, and it was here that he first started upon his athletic career.

Rising from the high school leagues, he went out with the Mount Allison sextet of Sackville, N.B. Here his fine slick handling ability raised not a few high brows, and was to give him a regular berth on the Red squad a few years later. Because of sprained ankle he was forced to miss three of this year's games, but this takes nothing away from his good showing.

Starting his engineering course at Mount Allison, Ken continued his studies here and has been at McGill for the past three semesters. This spring will see him graduating in Mechanical Engineering, and although he has to leave, we are not a little sorry at his parting from the University. He was one of the foremost people for fostering interclass competition in sport, and took as well an active part in other campus offices.

Ken believes, and we don't care to argue on that point, that McGill had one of her best teams this year, but due to inferior competition which she did not have to put up with in previous seasons, the hockey crown went to Toronto. This lack of competition coupled with several injuries no little hampered the Red outfit more than anything.

To you Ken we desire a pleasant future upon your starting out into the world, and McGill will remember you as the years roll by as she has her other hockey stalwarts.

Bishop Six Play Coed Hockeyists

The Coed puckmen or rather women will journey to Lennoxville this weekend to renew their feud with Bishops. McGill came out on top last Saturday by a 1-0 score, and will be gunning to make it two straight Saturday. They also hold another victory this year so they hope to maintain their winning streak.

Since the Coeds have desired to take on all comers as a result of their brilliant victory over the Engineers, an earnest bid has come from the flashy Theology squad who as well are undefeated and a sure bet to win the Interclass honours this year. It would indeed be a natural as both teams have a few matters to settle besides superiority.

The Coeds will take along their own referee Doug Campbell to Bishops, and the best of luck goes with the team.

FOURTH YEAR WINS COMMERCE BOWLING

The Commerce Bowling League finished its schedule yesterday afternoon when fourth year set a new record of 1634 pins for twelve strings while beating third year. This tradition was upheld and the fourth year team will be presented with their cups at the coming Commerce Banquet. The six men to win the cups are: G. Ritchie, A. Berube, K. Buckland, J. Tebbutt, C. Thomson and P. Dalton.

reports considerable difficulty in obtaining plywood of a grade suitable for use in the construction of aircraft. The supply from Poland—which was formerly the source—has been pretty effectively throttled by the war, and obtaining it from the United States or Great Britain means paying a rather high price. Our scouts have unearthed rumours of a shadow factory in the far and frozen North, however, which is supposed to be producing the commodity in quantity. A letter has accordingly been dispatched by dog-team, and a reply is hoped for before the spring thaw. Meanwhile mothers of gliding enthusiasts are warned to keep an eye on any plywood or veneer furniture in the household, lest their bureau take to the air and they discover their best bridge table to have become part and parcel of a flying machine.

We should like to warn members well in advance that attendance at the fortnightly meetings will become increasingly advisable from now on. A week from next Friday the discussion will cover the technique of flying and manoeuvres and it is scarcely necessary for us to point out that it is a subject which should not be missed. Facts are coming to light constantly which indicate that we must develop a good number of experienced pilots as soon as possible if we are to keep abreast of things. Without a thorough knowledge of the proper technique and the underlying principles it is difficult if not impossible for the best of pilots to get beyond the bungee, or shock-cord, stage. And as for actual soaring, attempts are hopeless without a thorough grounding in meteorology.

So plan to devote every other Friday evening to the Flying Club, and bring your friends along as well. We must look forward in the near future to having more machines and very many more men to fly them. Not ham-handed tyros but pilots who really understand that the purpose of the controls in the machine is more than supplying convenient levers with which to take one's setting-up exercises for the day. We must have men who will be ready to step into a high-performance machine when we get one, and the day may not be too distant. To train to this stage is a matter of months, so be prepared—call Elwood 7271 and start now!

CANADIAN

By Reuben Frank

A C.U.P. Feature

Why? Because they beat the Engineers—big, bald and bold. They took a crate of eggs from their own farm, and descended upon the red-sweated men of the silve-rule. They had skunked the forty beeters the day before and they were out to do it again. Many chicks remained unborn as the yellow yolks splattered the hapless bridge-builders and oil-drillers. Even the professors present came in for their share of the barrage, and one of them had to raise the white flag to escape. Then came the big moment: the Aggies seized an engineer, not fleet of foot, and tore his red Science sweater from his back. They hung it in their trophy room like a scalp beside the three suits of engineering underwear (that's what the report says) they had procured the day before. It was too much. The men of the set-square grovelled in the dust, wept into their forty beers and sued for peace. And from this year onward, the anniversary of the Aggie triumph will be a day of sackcloth and ashes for the engineers. So shout, chillun, sing Hallelujah! It's the U. B. C. Aggies—Rah! Rah! Rah!

Such Sweet Sorrow.

And so we come to the end of the last edition of The Canadian Campus. Always something different, something new. May I say that this little weekly visit has been pleasant, and I have greatly enjoyed the opportunity C.U.P. has afforded me of dropping in on you for a cup of tea and a little bit of inconsequential chatter. Perhaps you, too, believe, as I believe, that it's the inconsequential that matters. Let the initials storm and the student leaders rage, a good gag is worth a thousand organizations. Stop crying, Frank, you're getting your shirt wet. So long, everybody. ... So long...

might be of interest to all the faithful, Kenny Farmer, one of the greats of former Red hockey teams is now in the army. And his commanding officer? You guessed it. Colonel Forbes. And we wonder if he has the same trouble as everybody else in trying to remember to address him as Colonel instead of the more familiar Major.

If we had the authority, or the ambition to do a little organization, we would have a nice little party and send off the Thomson trophy which is still standing in the Union. Not that we expect it to be gone for over a year, but there will certainly be a party when it comes back next year, and we always maintain that one good party deserves another, no matter when they are to take place.

Notes in passing: We really ought to say something about the basketball team that tried and failed to win the Bronze Baby trophy... but those scores seem to do an awful lot of talking for themselves... however, to be fair to the girls they were hampered a lot with injuries and that old bugbear, eligibility... thanks to the powers that be that we only have to write one more of these columns before the big blowout, the Dolly banquet.

made of the billiard and ping pong tables. I believe interest could be revived by tournaments and the crowning of champions!

To round out a full program the Union runs a Cafeteria, or did you know? It has always been the greatest problem the House Committee has had to face. The aim is to provide the best food possible at the cheapest rate. To do this we must have increased patronage of it. I believe a great deal could be done to increase this, by means of advertising in an addition to excellent food. New students should be introduced to it at the beginning of the year to get the habit of eating here daily. Meal tickets facilitate this. Banquets and luncheons should be pushed.

As to campus organizations, they have always been welcome to the use of the Union and would be still. Class functions, in the form of luncheons, get-togethers and hops, should be held more often. The ball room is there to be used, and it should be used.

There are a few changes in the building of the Union itself. I would like to see changed. I have already mentioned the lack of meeting rooms and how that will be remedied. The Cafeteria should be redecorated. At present it does not seem to have the atmosphere to attract Joe College with Betty Coed. Between meal times it is empty. This should be remedied. It should be the free period rendezvous of the campus and a new appearance would assist this.

The lighting system of the Ball room is antiquated and should be renovated. This could be done during the coming summer. Also the basement, which houses among other activities the Red and White. The Daily, Players' Club and the Annual could do with improvements.

One of the jobs of the President of the Union is his membership of the Student Executive Council. He represents the largest organization on the Campus. I am aware of the responsibility that this entails.

In allowing my name to stand for this office, I realize the work that will have to be put into it and will do it to the best of my abilities. Due to circumstances beyond my control I would not be able to live in, but as my home is not far from the University I am sure that this will not handicap me in the performance of the duties. The Vice President would be able to live in.

To sum up, I would like to make the Union the Students' Club both in word and deed. I have had experience in its management and am familiar with its problems, and I am ready to do my best to solve them.

and I feel that there would be ample space for all if the present partitions were rearranged. The floor needs relaying badly, and the lighting facilities require improvement. If so changed, all clubs requiring office space could be granted more suitable headquarters.

If elected President, I will continue to see that the present high standards of food and service are maintained in the Cafeteria. I feel that the serving counter in the Cafeteria should be placed in a different position than it is at present, affording more room for those desiring tables. This can be done at a reasonable expenditure, and the overcrowding that has taken place this past winter can thus be eliminated.

This summer the Athletics Office is to be moved to the new Gymnasium. I think it is essential that the space thus vacated be used for an additional meeting room, as this past winter it has been frequently difficult to provide accommodation to all clubs and societies desiring space.

There is no reason why more tournaments could not be organized in billiards and ping pong, and steps should be taken to enlarge upon this winter's events. The Union has excellent facilities for dancing and full use should be made of them by offering low priced but attractive dances at frequent intervals. Changes are also needed in the Reading Room magazine lists to raise the standard.

As a large proportion of the student body is engaged in the O.T.C., or some other type of Military Service, regard must not be lost for the possibility of using the Union to further this work. In the past war the Union played an important role in the training of McGill men. If elected I will do all in my power, without curtailing the student privileges and programme, to again make the Union available to the McGill authorities for the furtherance of War work.

In presenting this platform to you I am NOT advocating anything very fancy or impossible. I am merely asking you to support one who has had experience living in the Union on the House Committee, in order that the Union management may be kept financially sound and that YOU, as Union members, may have a Club which will be of advantage to you.

quote committee room. Such a room has long been lacking in the Union for Student Council meetings and other executive functions.

In previous years, freshmen have been slow in learning of the many facilities which the Union offers. I would see that steps be taken at the beginning of next term to inform the newcomers of its many advantages.

I shall do my utmost to keep the price of meals in the Union cafeteria at its present low level despite the rising cost of food. In the past, conflicting dates of student functions have caused confusion and financial loss. I would aid the Students' Council in the formation of a Social Co-ordinating Committee for the alleviation of this difficulty.

These are the main planks of my platform. I am fully aware, however, of other needs, such as further encouragement of informal hops, the promotion of billiards and ping-pong to the rank of inter-faculty tournaments. I shall also encourage further suggestions for Union improvements.

In closing, I wish to thank those who nominated me and promise that if elected I shall bear in mind, in carrying out my duties, the best traditions of past and retiring executives.

The meals at the Union Cafeteria this year have been satisfactory and the present high standard should be maintained.
